

Creating a Coaching Culture

As leaders, we are constantly asked to deliver more with less. That's a lot of pressure!
Give yourself the edge by creating a culture of Coaching Leadership.

You never forget working for a fantastic boss. Chances are he or she had, either intentionally or unknowingly, the characteristics that make a good coach and because of this, you were willing to go the extra mile.

Can you make yourself an even more fantastic boss than you already are? YES, YOU CAN!

During this session we will cover...

- Understanding what coaching is and what it isn't
- Exploring your own personal leadership to date
- Thinking about what drives human behaviour
- Understanding how a coaching culture can improve employee engagement, reduce turnover and help to guide change
- Deciding if you want to leave a legacy with those who work for you

Date - 26 November 2019

Time - 09:00 – 11:00
(08:30 registration)

Venue - Evertsdal Guest House,
Eversdal, Durbanville

Investment - R515 excl. VAT

Stephanie Hampel is a vibrant and passionate business professional. A successful leader of diverse teams in large organisations, she has held various senior leadership and executive roles in the UK and Australia over the last 20 years. She excels at developing people, especially emerging female leaders. Stephanie specialises in performance coaching, using a strengths-based, solution focused and collaborative approach to initiate and sustain behaviour change. She is no stranger to personal challenge. As a mountaineer and alpine climber she constantly confronts her own boundaries and pushes past her limits so she understands what it takes for a client to overcome barriers.