The Power of NO

Johannesburg | 23 November 2018

More about our Speakers

Ntsiki Ncoco (Key Executives Global Consultancy)

"The power of NO is a topic that we as women, all need to pay attention to and can learn more about."

She was nominated as one of SA's most inspirational women in the volume 2 book, 'Women in Leadership' by African Innovations. She holds a B.Com honors degree from the University of Transkei. She is the CEO and founder of Key Executives Global Consultancy, focusing on human resources solutions, leadership training and development, commodity trading and business linkages projects. She is the chairperson and founder of Power To Lead with Integrity, a corporate social investment of Key Executives Consultancy focusing on people empowerment and change management. She is a personal development and leadership professional speaker and strong believer in leadership with integrity and leaving a legacy.

Charlotte Kemp (Futures Alchemist)

"Genius lies in simplicity, profit in the nuance, success in what we do not do, long before it relies on what we do."

Charlotte is a futurist and a professional speaker. She works with teams to help them navigate the future to overcome hurdles and take advantage of the great shifts in life in order for them to achieve more than they could have imagined. She served as a chapter president and board member for the Professional Speakers Association of Southern Africa, a secretary to the Global Speakers Federation and is a student member of the Association of Professional Futurists. She has written numerous books and is completing a futures focussed book called "Why the Future - long term views of short term problems". She previously trained companies in the field of social media, branding and marketing. Her research lead her to the field of Futures Studies and has since started studying a post graduate diploma at USB.

Candy Guvi (ABSA Group)

"When the barriers fall and the fear conquered, confidence builds up."

Candy is a seasoned communications professional and business executive coach in-training with over 10 years experience in strategic corporate communications and talent management in financial services. She spent many years as a financial journalist and presenter at one of South Africa's leading business TV stations where she was a regular news anchor and held numerous on-air interviews, including moderating panel discussions with leading local and regional business executives. She is currently studying towards a master of management in business executive coaching. Candy is a firm believer that true happiness comes from a willingness to learn and grow on a journey aligned with one's values. She is a self-proclaimed adrenalin junkie who also enjoys travelling and is fascinated by the cultural immersion, human connections and personal growth these journey experiences bring.
