

Turning education system around

There is a nationwide movement currently changing the reality of schools that are less privileged, which is having significant impact in preparing pupils to take active and productive roles in society.

Somerset House School in Somerset West is proud to be a part of a national initiative, which is aimed at turning the South African education crisis around.

The vision of the Quality Education For South Africa (QE4SA) campaign will be hosted at the school on Monday February 25, from 7pm to 9.30pm (registration starts half an hour prior), where guests can hear more about this project, and how it stands to significantly impact the Somerset West region.

Dr Louise van Rhyn, founder of the Partners for Possibility initiative, is the guest speaker.
