Jeanne-Lu has worked with individuals, teams and organisations in areas of leadership and team development, change management, emotional intelligence and performance management.

She holds a Masters Degree in Psychology from the University of Stellenbosch and is a registered Psychometrist and MBTI-consultant. Jeanne-Lu is passionate about guiding individuals, teams and organisations on a journey of discovery and growth where talent, effectiveness and productivity can be maximised.

In addition to this, Jeanne-Lu has recently completed the post-graduate certificate in the Neuroscience of Leadership. She plays a vital role in introducing and developing the field of NeuroLeadership within South Africa and South African organisations.

By bringing this knowledge to the business leaders of South Africa, Jeanne-Lu aims to support leaders on a quest to acquire new skills that can be implemented in the working environment. This enables leaders to inspire their teams and organisations to improve their performance, productivity and creativity. Insights from Neuroscience reveal that business leaders can create organisations where people thrive and are passionately involved in what they do.

Jeanne-Lu also contributes to workshop design, co-ordinating and management of client specific interventions and projects. She follows a systemic, structured process and likes to balance creative activities with logic-analytical activities. She has the ability to ‘dance’ in the moment and facilitate challenging issues as they arise.

Jeanne-Lu has a relaxed approach to her work and strives to engage every voice in conversation so that energy, creativity and insights are ignited.

Jeanne-Lu also enjoys facilitating large group events and believes in the transformational power of conversational based processes. Accordingly, she has facilitated different themed café conversations and creative facilitation sessions.
